What is ITSMF story?	Positioning Professionals for Technology Leadership The Information Technology Senior Management Forum (ITSMF), formed in 1996, began with a conversation between a few prominent technology executives who discovered that only 3% of information technology management roles were held by diverse professionals. Studies suggested that not enough professionals were positioned for senior-level technology positions. This discussion sparked those executives, most of whom were CIOs of major corporations, to action as they were compelled to reach, teach, and nurture aspiring technology professionals. Under the leadership of Carl Williams, this 501c(3) organization began recruiting professionals who ranked among the Who's Who in technology, along with companies and individuals who boldly dared to disrupt the status quo and seek more inclusion among technology executives. For over 25 years, ITSMF has remained the premier national organization dedicated exclusively to cultivating executive talent among technology professionals. We are extremely proud of our history, encouraged by today's progress, and excited about the work still needed to fulfill tomorrow's promise.
